Title: Examine and reflect on the gap between one's present state and natural acceptance, and to recognize essential elements that contribute to inner harmony, happiness, and holistic well-being through deeper self-awareness and mindful living.

a. Examine and reflect on the gap between one's present state and natural acceptance, and to recognize essential elements that contribute to inner harmony, happiness, and holistic well-being through deeper self-awareness and mindful living

Instructions:

1. Reflect on your current life situation, habits, thoughts, decisions, and actions.
2. Compare these with your natural acceptance (what feels right to you inherently – without societal or external pressure).
3. Identify gaps – areas where your actions/thoughts do not match your natural acceptance.
4. Mention how these affect your inner harmony and happiness.
5. Fill at least 5–6 observations. Be honest and reflective.
6. Write it on PICT both side ruled pages

Sr.No.	Area of Life / Thought	Present State (What I am currently doing or feeling)	Natural Acceptance (What feels inherently right to me)	Gap Identified? (Yes/No)	Comments / Observations
1	Relationship with family	Often impatient with parents	Want to be respectful and patient	Yes	Need to work on communication
2	Daily routine	Irregular sleeping schedule	Prefer waking up early and staying energetic	Yes	Planning time better
...	...	...	...	...	...

b. What does a fulfilling life mean for you? List out the top five points that occur to you when you think of a fulfilling life. While making the list, please consider your entire life, not just the present stage of your life (childhood, youth, middle age, old age, etc.)

Instructions:

1. Think deeply about what "fulfilling life" means to you.
2. Consider different stages of your life — past, present, and future.
3. List the top five points that define a fulfilling life for you.

Assignment No 3

Title: Analyze your desires to distinguish their source of motivation—sensation, preconditioning, or natural acceptance—and reflect on efforts needed for self-organization.

Key Terms (for clarity):

- Sensation – Desires driven by physical pleasure or attraction (e.g. craving food, comfort, luxury).
- Preconditioning – Desires developed due to society, media, education, or peer influence (e.g. thinking you must have a branded phone to be happy).
- Natural Acceptance – Desires that feel right to you deeply and naturally, regardless of external pressure (e.g. wanting to live with honesty, peace, love).

Instructions:

1. Make a list of at least 10 desires you currently have.
2. For each desire, try to understand what motivates it:
    - Is it driven by sensation?
    - Is it based on preconditioning?
    - Or does it come from your natural acceptance?
3. If a desire has more than one source, split it into two separate ones.
4. After completing the table, reflect and answer the 3 observation questions given below.

Sr .No.	My Desire	Source of Motivation (Choose One)
1	Eating ice cream late at night	Sensation
2	Wanting to top the class	Preconditioning
3	Spending time with family	Natural Acceptance

Now Reflect and Write:

Q1. Approximately what percentage of your desires come from your natural acceptance?
Your Answer: _____ %
Q2. What percentage are motivated by sensation or preconditioning?
Your Answer: _____ %
Q3. What effort is needed for you to become more self-organized or autonomous (if this is your goal)?
Your Answer:……...
